

ERA-convention ban

The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists says it will hold its convention only in a state which has ratified the Equal Rights Amendment. On Sunday the 33,000-member union cancelled its June convention in Chicago because Illinois has not ratified the ERA. And the House of Delegates of the 22,000-member American Medical Students Association voted Sunday to hold the organization's future annual conventions only in states where the ERA has been ratified.
